

<https://www.audacy.com/krlb/news/local/former-boeing-executive-from-texas-indicted-on-federal-fraud-charges-over-max-safety>

NEWSRADIO 1080 KRLD
NEWS LOCAL

Former Boeing Executive from Texas indicted on federal fraud charges over MAX safety

Boeing 737 MAX 8 Photo credit © Jeremy Dwyer-Lindgren/Special to USA TODAY via Imagn Content Services, LLC

By Austin York, NewsRadio 1080 KRLD

October 15, 2021 9:23 pm

A former Boeing executive from Keller has been indicted on federal fraud charges, accused of lying about the safety of the 737 Max jets that were involved in two deadly crashes.

The Boeing made planes were grounded for 20 months after two crashes resulted in the deaths of 346 people.

Federal prosecutors say 49-year-old Mark Forkner was Boeing's Chief Technical Pilot and according to the indictment provided false information to the FAA about a portion of the plane's flight controls.

Aviation attorney Kent Krause says its rare that any one person faces criminal charges after such a crash.

The MAX was allowed to fly again at the end of 2020, once the planes software was modified.

Boeing has agreed to pay more than $2.5 billion to settle certain lawsuits.